TAILORED in the WORKSHOP of WORTH

 A MANIFICENT ASSEMBLAGE
OF FASHION'S FRESHEST IDEAS for FALL

THE collection of spick-and-span new garment creations which you are invited to inspect is the largest and finest array of stylish models J. T. SCHUMACHER ever brought together.

There is a generous variety here, but each garment was carefully chosen for its style distinction and its service giving qualities. They represent the artistic work of the famous WORKSHOP OF WORTH style designers and tailors, so that you can make your selections with absolute surety of correctness in each detail.

The styles have been developed with unusual artistic skill. Wonderfully beautiful effects are seen in the plain tailored types as well as the elaborately trimmed models.

If you are undecided as to what you wish to wear the coming season, this display will help you arrive at a conclusion. By coming early, you see the splendid assortment in something like its entirety, and you will be able to secure a good selection. Many of these models will not remain with us long.

The new garments are developed along semi-fitting lines so as to give the now desirable small hip effect. This shape, happily, is becoming to all figures and is developed in scores of different effects. Trim and jaunty tailored coat suits in finger-tip length vie with longer and shorter models for supremacy. Cloaks are beautifully trimmed with Hercules and Radium braids and large buttons.

Some cloak models have the raised waist-line suggestive of the Empire vogue; others have pretty Greek shoulder trimming. The Directorate influence—not in its exaggerated form, but as a revival of the Greek and Roman art—may be noted in both cloaks and suits. The Napoleon collar, Directorate reverses, large pockets and slashed seams are some of the novel features of these charmingly original models.

In the Princess Nippon Cloaks, the Princess Directorate Cloaks and the Princess Empire Cloaks, those desiring the touch of novelty will find their wants satisfied in a most pleasing way.

There is a wealth of distinctive weaves and shade in the new fabrics. Altogether, it is the most interesting showing of Ladies' Apparel we have ever known. We have sold out our Grocery Department, and the space formerly occupied with groceries is now filled with cloaks and suits, making this the ideal cloak and suit department in the city. Come and See for Yourself.

Bad Wreck at Almond.

A wreck occurred at Almond last Wednesday which was caused by a rear end collision between the passenger train that arrives here at 1:35 going north and a freight that had just pulled into Almond. The only person that received any serious injury was Joseph Simpson, the engineer on the passenger, who jumped from his engine just before the trains collided and had his left leg broken and a part of his left foot crushed, so that several of the toes had to be amputated.

The wreck was caused by the freight crew running their train on the passenger time. They knew that the passenger left Fond du Lac twenty-five minutes late, and got into Almond after the passenger was due, and had they pulled ahead and backed into the siding instead of stopping by the depot, they would have been no accident. The passenger was running fast, the crew say about thirty miles an hour, and as they rounded the curve into Almond the engineer saw the hind end of the freight train on the main track. He called to the engineer and jumped. The engineer put on the emergency brake and jumped also, but on his side of the track there was a row of box cars and in order to avoid these it is supposed that he got off pretty close to the engine and either stepped onto the track or was thrown so that his left foot got onto the rails. It all happened so suddenly that Mr. Simpson could not tell himself how it occurred. He was picked up unconscious and brought to this city and placed in the hospital, where his wounds were taken care of and he regained consciousness next morning.

None of the passengers on the train were hurt to any extent, although they were given a bad shaking up. The conductor of the passenger was shaken up considerably and although he went thru to Marshfield all right he later asked to be relieved and the next day was relieved when he passed thru this city.

Some pictures were taken of the wreck, and it was evident from those that the two trains had come together in a forcible manner. The front end of the passenger engine was entirely demolished by the impact, and the caboose on a freight car just ahead. The freight car was loaded with household goods and these were reduced to kindling wood. The passenger coaches were not injured and none of them left the track, the shock probably being broken to a certain extent by the fact that the engineer was on the air brakes before he jumped.

Was a Good Concert.

More than three hundred people assembled at the Lincoln school on Wednesday evening to hear the vocal concert by Mrs. Charlotte Lynn-Campbell. That they were pleased with the selections was quite evident by the manner in which they cheered. Besides the regular program there were a large number of encores. Following is the program:

b—"I Think," Guvud Hadretol
c—Ella's Dream (from Lohengrin)

More Bass Planted.

Fisheries Car No. 3 of the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries, department of Commerce and Labor, arrived at Grand Rapids, over the Green Bay & Western Ry. 2:45 p. m. Sept. 19th. It was loaded with 10,000 Black bass from 6 to 8 inches long, and about 5,000 catfish 2 to 4 inches long. All for the Wisconsin river at Grand Rapids, and not a dead fish in the load. The fish were taken to Byron by the Green Bay switch engine and planted above the dam.

These fish are from the ponds left along the Mississippi, caused by the water receding to low water mark. As the summer advances the ponds dry up, and such fish as are in them die. Uncle Sam undertakes to save as many of the fish as possible, by sealing the ponds and putting the large ones directly into the main river at nearest point, and distributing the young ones to places where they are most needed. This work is under the direction of Superintendent Johnson of the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries, and this load is brought to the Wisconsin river at the request of the representative in congress in order to comply with the numerous earnest solicitations of the leading sportsmen of this section. It is understood that other lots of fish are destined for Wisconsin waters.

Hon. Geo. M. Bowens, Washington, D. C. is commissioner of fish and fisheries, and under his general personal direction the scope of this work is being constantly increased, with gratifying results to the sportsmen throughout the United States.

The government has six of these cars at work the year round. They are built by the Pullman Company especially for this work, being equipped with apparatus for caring for the fish in transit, that is both complicated and complete. There is an air blower that works by steam that through a series of iron and rubber pipes puts air in the water, which does away with the necessity of changing the water.

The fish are carried in ten gallon cans not in compartments built like a refrigerator which enables an even natural temperature to be maintained for the fish. There is a culinary department where meals are prepared for the employees on the car. Each man has one berth in which to sleep and a locker for his personal effects. The most experienced men are employed in the cars after having worked in other divisions of the service. Five men including a cook are with each car, and live on it throughout the year as the cars are running all the time.

The men on the car report that fish are very plentiful this year, in fact there are more than they know what to do with. This is because the water in the rivers is so low that many ponds are formed along the shores where the fish are entrapped and unable to make their escape unless they are picked out and put into the river again. Many of the fish that were planted here were eight inches long and will make fine bass by next year.

Want Another Carrier.

For several weeks past Postmaster McDonald has been looking into the matter of having an extra mail carrier put in this city in order to handle the mail in better shape than the present carriers are able to do. A record has been kept of the amount of mail that the carriers take out, and a petition has been circulated among the people who are not now getting the service they want. All this matter when completed will be forwarded to the postoffice department and the department will be able to see just the condition the city is in and what is necessary in order to give the required service.

An effort was made some time ago to get another carrier in the city but the matter was not handled in the proper manner and the consequence was that it fell thru. Mr. McDonald is going about it in a systematic manner so that the department will know the exact conditions, after which there is no question but what we will get the carrier.

Committed to the Asylum.

Sheriff Welch took John Davidson to Oakkosh yesterday to place him in the asylum. Davidson was picked up on the street here some time ago, he being apparently without a home, money, or brains. He was unable to give any account of himself, and notwithstanding the fact that the authorities made every effort to locate his home or relatives, nothing whatever could be discovered. It was a baffling case and nothing could be done but send him to the asylum.

Menier-Stebbins.

Louis Menier of this city and Miss Freda Stebbins of Marshfield, Ill., were united in the holy bonds of matrimony last Saturday, Sept. 19th, at 2 o'clock at the Catholic parsonage in that city by Rev. L. R. Hackett. The bride was attended by Miss Pearl Douglas and John Johnson acted as best man. After the ceremony the young couple left for Chicago for a short wedding tour. Upon their return they will make their home in Marshfield where the groom holds a good position in a store. Although the bride is not known in this city the groom has a host of friends who will wish them a long and happy wedded life. Arrested for Assault.

N. A. Taylor, a traveling man, was arrested Saturday night by Sheriff Welch when the Northwestern pulled in. Taylor, it seems, had been mixed up in an altercation with a man at Noshkora and during the trouble the other man was struck by Taylor, with the result that the Sheriff arrested him here.

Football Saturday.

The high school football team will play the team from Wausau on Saturday afternoon at the school grounds. This is the first game of the season and there will no doubt be a large attendance as the people are anxious to see how our boys are going to show up this year.

Mr. Bryan's Greatness.

Time softens and wears away the bitterness of political contention. With most of us the years as they pass have a mellowing and kindly influence in our attitude towards our political foes. Nothing better illustrates this than the attitude of thousands of republicans and former democrats toward Mr. Bryan. He has been styled a demagogue, an anarchist, a self-seeking politician, and a traitor, over and over again in years gone by, by those who have for him now the warmest feeling of respect and consideration. He has won out against the bitterest condemnation until now, without disparagement of them, he stands first in American citizenship. No American has ever conquered defeat and gained the respect of his political enemies as has Mr. Bryan. Mr. Bryan's Greatness.

Time softens and wears away the bitterness of political contention. With most of us the years as they pass have a mellowing and kindly influence in our attitude towards our political foes. Nothing better illustrates this than the attitude of thousands of republicans and former democrats toward Mr. Bryan. He has been styled a demagogue, an anarchist, a self-seeking politician, and a traitor, over and over again in years gone by, by those who have for him now the warmest feeling of respect and consideration. He has won out against the bitterest condemnation until now, without disparagement of them, he stands first in American citizenship. No American has ever conquered defeat and gained the respect of his political enemies as has Mr. Bryan. Serene and untroubled by recent under just attack, he has borne himself in all the trying ordeals and disappointments of his political life like a man. SHALL THE PEOPLE RULE

APPEAL TO THE DEMOCRATS For Bryan and Kern Campaign Fund From the Democratic National Committee.

To the Editor of the Grand Rapids Tribune, Grand Rapids, Wis. There are no secrets in this campaign. Strictly practicing what he preaches, Mr. Bryan would not win victory with tainted money paying the election expenses.

Not a dollar is to be accepted which requires any promise, either express or implied, other than for HONEST, IMPARTIAL GOVERNMENT. Mr. Bryan will enter the White House absolutely free from entangling alliances, free to serve all classes of honest citizens alike, or he will not enter it at all.

Hence the course is plain. The campaign of Bryan and Kern must be conducted by the people. The people must pay the necessary campaign expenses if they want public servants who will serve their interests.

Special interests and favored classes, having secured "SWOLLEN FORTUNES" by purchasing favors in the past with MILLIONS CONTRIBUTED TO CONTROL ELECTIONS, cannot be expected to give MILLIONS MORE FOR CONTINUED FAVORS. But that class never gives a dollar unless it has a pledge.

Mr. Bryan says, from March 4th, 1909, "LET THE PEOPLE RULE." This means come only if the people may their own bills, and control their own elections. "BEWARE OF THE TRUSTS BEARING GIFTS."

That policy of the favored few buying a mortgage on the Government meant that the candidate for President know a few people only in an entire State. Bryan says, "We will take the cause of PEOPLE'S RULE home to the people in every county."

You can serve the grand cause of popular government through the columns of your paper. It reaches the fireside of the patriot who loves his country for his country's GOOD; as distinguished from the greedy possessor of swollen fortunes who loves his country's GOODS.

Please carry this letter in Bold Type at the masthead of your paper, asking every one who favors Government by the people to pay you. At once, as a matter of fact, as he can sure to aid the Campaign for BRYAN, KERN AND PEOPLE'S RULE.

You forward these gifts of honest hearts and homes every week to the Treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, with the name of each contributor and amounts given. The treasurer will forward you a certificate like the copy enclosed for each one, asking you to deliver these certificates.

Once more, you should be a part of the Great Organization bearing the Lamp of Light to every nook and corner of Free America. Our Country is for the People: its Government must be by the People. Sincerely, NORMAN E. MAOK, Chairman Democratic National Committee.

M. C. WETMORE, Chairman Finance Committee. C. N. HASKELL, Treasurer, Chicago, Sept. 1, 1908. Send in Your Contributions. In accordance with the above the GRAND RAPIDS TRIBUNE will receive subscriptions to the Democratic National Campaign Fund and urge all local Democrats to send in their contributions. The Grand Rapids Tribune will transmit these weekly to Gov. C. N. Haskell, treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, who will issue to each contributor a beautifully executed acknowledgment printed in three colors as a souvenir of their devotion to the cause of Democracy and the principles of government by the people.

When sending in your contribution money use the accompanying remittance blank, and, unless otherwise requested, your name will be printed in The Grand Rapids Tribune together with the amount given.

(From the Times.) Mrs. Seth Barden passed away at Riverside Hospital, Grand Rapids, last Friday night, death being caused by a tumor for which she had undergone an operation on Tuesday. There was little hope of her recovery when she was taken to the hospital, but the operation was made as the only chance she had. Mrs. Barden was 34 years old. She leaves a widower and six children by a former marriage.

One of whom is Mrs. John Ziemann, the youngest is a nine year old boy. The funeral was at Alameda. Mrs. Barden's former home, to which place the remains were shipped on Monday, Rev. A. W. Cook of this city conducted services at the home here. The family has the sincere sympathy of this community.

Mrs. Kaszoo O. Slining died at her farm home in the town of Arden, last Saturday night at 11:30 o'clock after seven weeks of suffering with a complication of diseases. Mr. and Mrs. Slining located in Arden, nine years ago and were highly esteemed by all who knew them. A meeting of the electors of Joint School District No. 5 was held last evening when the sum of $400 was voted to be levied against the taxable property of the district for school purposes and it was decided to present a petition to the village board asking that the district be annexed to the village district.

A. W. Cook has resigned as pastor of the Congregational church and will move to Mission Hill, South Dakota, several miles from Yankton, Rev. and Mrs. Cook have been here for a year and during that time have won many friends in this community who wish their happiness and comfort in their new home.

BABCOCK

The young ladies of Babcock gave a lawn party dance Friday evening. Music was furnished by Bliss' orchestra of Grand Rapids. It was not very well attended but all agree that they had a fine time. Now boys it's up to you.

Frank W. Merrill of Gettysburg, South Dakota has been visiting friends here the past week. They were all glad to see him. He reports good crops out there and thinks of locating there if he finds a suitable opening.

Clint Kruger, Frank Merrill and Ben Lynn were Grand Rapids visitors Tuesday. Messrs. Kruger and Lynn returned by the next train while Mr. Merrill went on to Vesper.

All the young fellows who can make a raise of anything that looks like a gun are out hunting these fine Babcock and ducks. Clint Kruger of Grand Rapids left for Oelrich, South Dakota, Thursday afternoon where he has accepted his old school at a substantial advance in salary. Clint makes them too the mark.

Word was received last week from Miles City, Montana, that Frank Orent was dangerously sick with typhoid fever. Mrs. Orent has gone out to care for him. Lorrain Watson took in the dance Friday night. He thinks there are some pretty fine young ladies here. George Ward went to Orono Douglas last Sunday in a business way.

Louis Kammerer went to the Rapids on business Friday.

REDFIELD.

Tammarhew Lander—William R. Branton, station agent at Haddon Junction, died at Sacred Heart hospital at 1 o'clock this morning of paralysis, resulting from Bright's disease. His death though sudden was not unexpected, as little hope was extended for his recovery yesterday afternoon. Dr. Redman of Grand Rapids came last evening, called in consultation on the case. He is the Branton family doctor. Mr. Branton's father and mother came yesterday from Grand Rapids, called here by his sudden illness. Mr. Branton attended to his duties as agent at Haddon Junction Monday. On Tuesday he was confined to his bed and Wednesday evening he was brought here and taken to the hospital. The remains will be taken to Grand Rapids tomorrow (Saturday) morning in the 9 o'clock passenger train. The funeral will be held at 10 o'clock after seven weeks of suffering with a complication of diseases. His hand slipped from his back coat, and then back again, and he made a remark in an undertone that I don't was not intended for a pleasant greeting.

"There's a little dinner of a few friends going on upstairs," I said politely. "Won't you join us?"

Moskier snarled a moment with evident surprise.

"No, I won't," he growled.

"Just it is a sad case for a man to dine alone," I said smoothly. "You will be very welcome."

"No, sir," said he, looking furtively at my men drawing near, between him and the door.

"But I insist," I said politely. Then I added in a lower tone meant for him alone: "Resist, you bound, and I'll have you carried up by your four

"RESIST, YOU BOUND, AND

"Where is he?" cried Porter, the first of my men to reach my side.

I struggled my shoulders. "I haven't seen him."

"He didn't come our way—that I'll swear," panted Fitzhugh.

"He was out of sight before I got my feet," said I. They must have a hiding-place close by."

"He must have jumped the fence here," said Wilson, pointing to a cotton-pick field beyond the hotel's back yard.

"I'll see about it." And he vaulted the pickets and looked about the place.

He was back in a minute with a shake of the head.

As darkness came on, the apprehension of danger which had made an impression on me by daylight, began to settle strongly on my spirits, and concealed my fears and depression from the men, and with the lightning the lamps made my disposition meet any attack that might come. I had satisfied myself that the rear room, that faced the south, could be entered from the outside with the aid of the ladder. The parlor shod a door to the street on the east side, and I felt assured we were safe that side. But the front window, the parlor, and the front bed chamber, which joined it, opened on the veranda roof in common with a dozen rooms. Inside, the hallway, per-

GOLD IN THE NORTH.

Perhaps the most northerly gold-fields in the world are those in Lap-lands where the River Ivalo seems to be the center of an auriferous region, where gold dredging operations have been carried on for some time. Dig- gings to the depth of 300 feet have been completed with a view of finding out the real course of the ore. A com- plete discovery last year by a coun- cil of the United States amounted to only four pounds, val- ued at $1,600. This was found along a of the Ivalo river, and the largest get weighed about 123 grains. There are three companies digging gold now, the latest being the American company, organized by the United States. Within the possessions of this company lies Kuitla, which was built by the Finnish government washing gold.

Subtle warnings of danger floated over my sense between sleeping and waking, and each time I dropped into a doze I awoke with a start to see only the dimly-lighted forms of my men before me, and to hear only the sweep and whistle of the wind outside and the dash of water against the shutters. Three times I had been aroused thus, when, on the borderland between dreams and waking, a voice reached my ear.

"Sw-d! What was that?"

I sprang up, wide-awake, revolver in hand. It was Lockhart who spoke. We all strained our ears to listen. There was nothing to be heard but the moan of the wind and the dash of water.

For a moment I stood motionless. The men were open-eyed but silent. Their form kept up its mournful murmur, but no sound that I could attribute to man came to my straining ears.

Suddenly there was a cry from the hall.

"Who's there?" It was Porter's voice.

An instant later there was a crash of glass, an explosion seemed to shake the house, and there was a rush of men on foot.

I leaped to the door and flung it open. Lockhart, Wilson and Brown crowding close behind me. A body of men filled the hallway, and Porter was struggling in the hands of three ruffians. His revolver, whose shot we

Darby Meeker growled an answer. "You know what we're here for."

"You have broken into a respectable house like a band of robbers," I cried. "What do you want?"

"You know what we want, Mr. Whitton," was the surly answer. "Give us the boy and we won't touch you."

"And if not?"

There was silence for a few moments.

"What are you waiting for?" growled a voice from beyond the turn of the hall.

At the sound I thrilled to the finest fiber. Was it not the growl of the Wolf? Could I be mistaken in those tones? I listened eagerly for another word that might put it beyond doubt.

"Well, are you going to give him up?" asked the hoarse voice of Meeker.

swung noiselessly to my cautious touch. For a moment I could see nothing of my henchman, but the window was open. Then, in the obscurity I thought I discovered his body lying half-way across the window-sill. I waited for him to finish his preparations on the wall, but he made no move. I was struck with the fear that he had met foul play and touched him lightly.

In a flash he had turned on me and I felt the muzzle of a revolver pressing against my side.

"If you wouldn't mind turning that gun the other way, it would suit me just as well," I said.

"Oh, it's you, is it?" said Abrams with a gulp. "I thought Darby McKee had his gun at my back, sure."

"You were saying anything?" I asked.

"Yes, there was a call out here a bit ago, and there's half a dozen men

Then I saw that Wainwright had come forward, despite my bidding, eager to take his share of the onslaught. And by some freak of the spirit of the perverse the boys who were with him slipped out during the night. They had slipped out of his room, and climbed upon a chair to see what the excitement was about, as though danger and death were the last things in the world with which he had to reckon.

I caught a glimpse of his form outside the tint of my eye as he mounted the chair in his night dress. I turned with an exclamation to Wainwright, and was leaping to cover him from a possible bullet, when there was a roar of rage and the voice of Terrill rang through the hall:

"Tricked again!" he cried with a dreadful oath. "It's the wrong boy!"

SOLO MADE A SENSATION.

Barytone Had Caught the Music, But Not the Words.

A certain young Unitarian minister is visiting a friend and classmate who lives in Roxbury, says the Boston Herald, and while the two were sitting around a fire and spinning yarns the minister who is visiting and who comes from the west told this: "When I went west first I was in a small town called L—e, and in a blacksmith of my church the village blacksmith he did the noble work of barytone. He had a voice that could shake mountains, and whatever it lacked in any other feature, it made up in volume.

A Famous Model.

A good many years ago—27, to be exact—the most famous model in the world, Antonio Cero, wandered from town to town as a strolling minstrel in England. Felix Moscheles, the famous artist, happened to discover him at Dover, brought him to London and employed him as a model. That was the beginning of a successful artistic career, and to-day Antonio Cero is the distinguished model being the finest model in the world, as well as the most famous. All classes of painter have been thankful to employ him. He posed for Sargent and Abbey for the well known paintings in the Boston public library, and he has not disdained to appear as Mephistopheles or

"I wish you would import more English shop girls," said the inveterate shopper, according to the New York Press. "I came across one yesterday. I was buying a little white evening dress. There were about a hundred styles to select from and I think I looked at fifty. I looked at so many that after an hour, when I had at last selected one, I said to her with an apologetic laugh: 'I've been an awful lot of trouble to you, haven't I?' I think you'll wish I'll never come again." Indeed, I will not, she answered in her pretty English way. "I was no trouble. None at all. It has been a pleasure to wait on you."

Pailbearers' Union Formed.

Washington.—Across the river in Alexandria they have organized Pailbearers' union, No. 1, and they will give a ball. According to history, the union was formed for the purpose of aiding needy families by serving them as pailbearers. The union has a membership of 21.

The shortest route between the high hills and the Leydenburg gold fields winds through a long loof or gorge which, once upon a time, was the scene of a very remarkable battle. In the account of the sulphurous smoke from numerous hearths and the weird voices of the discharged slaves at night seemed its ironstone cliffs and pinacles, the loof itself was originally known as Salan's Firebox. But later when, in the war with the Macatees, the Boers were routed and driven upwards of a dozen miles from the loof, it was named by a regiment of Kafirs, and secured through the loof, the name was significantly changed to "Victorious pass."

from the mouth of a number of large calabashes brought with a poisonous liquid and placed them in a row in one of the gardens. Then they went through the form of pretending to wash their faces with the stuff, after which they left the calabashes in the gardens and departed. Watching their opportunity, the baboons came down to investigate the business and, being unable to imitate their hereditary practice to imitate the proceedings of others, they afterwards washed their faces in the poison and scampered away again. In short time the venom began to work, the flesh fell from their faces, and finally a number of them died in great agony.

For many days afterwards travelers

From the day when these arrangements were completed the baboons paid no attention whatever to white men, and after two or three unfortunate Kaffrs had been allowed to death and torn to pieces by the black race gave Petticoat an extremely wide berth. Consequently, the spider-like watchers up in their fastnesses had a long time to wait, but the whiff of time brings about its opportunities for revenge, even to baboons.

Just outside the Steelport end of the pass Max Pincus, a German trader, conducted a small store for the accommodation of travelers for the day the baboons were poisoned. Max was killed through the kloof, and across a little boy baboon, whose face was terribly burned by the Scientific Improvement.

Recent reports indicate that the use of sodium peroxide for producing fusion of substances in a closed chamber presents great advantages over former methods of analysis. Ores of galena, chrome iron and manganese are completely decomposed when mixed with sodium peroxide and metallic sulphids and ignited in a nickel crucible. In analysis of plants by ashing, loss of sulphur and other elements through volatilization is prevented by the peroxide method, especially useful in the analysis of sulphur in pyrites, and in rubber, of sulphur and arsenic in organic compounds.

"I have resorted to the use of Perina on two or three occasions since that time to cure myself of bad colds."

(As a matter of fact, Carol was regarded as a "falling in" by his family.) "However," he continued, "there is the money to pay the rent, only I don't let anyone know I have given it to you."

The father after this used to return periodically when his rent was due and obtain the money from Carol, who was marked on one occasion, "I agreed to be very generous, but I am not, because I get half of it back from my sister as my share of the rent."
